Hi Admin,

Hello Admin,

We would like to take this opportunity to encourage you during this pandemic to continue to be safe. We hope you are also controlling your rosacea. If you are controlling your rosacea, we would also encourage you to let other rosaceans know what you are doing to control your rosacea with prescription or non prescription treatments by creating your own free rosacea blog and helping other rosaceans. It is easy to setup your own rosacea blog (you can also set up your blog to private so that only RRDi members can view your blog) by reading this post. If you can't log into the RRDi website to create your blog, simply use the contact form and let us know and we will reset your password for you. We will need to know your name and email address you used to setup your account.

Rosaceans helping rosaceans is one of the chief reasons the RRDi was formed which is embedded in our mission statement:

Goal # 1: To be the first non profit organization for rosacea patient advocacy and to find the cure for rosacea.

The data on rosacea on our website is crucial for rosaceans in finding an armamentarium in the fight to control rosacea which is categorized in logical order in searching for data. If you appreciate what the RRDi has done for you in your struggle, you can help with posting at the RRDi at least one post a month something that can benefit other rosaceans. If you could simply donate one dollar that would help keep the RRDi going since our financial situation is less than optimal and in fact quite meager.

Thanks for being a RRDi member and for opting to receive the newsletter. We don't send out newsletters very often unless we have something important to tell you. If you do appreciate the RRDi non profit organization then we appeal to our members to let us know.

RRDi Finding the Cure

Rosacea Research & Development Institute